

6. Which IVC courses transfer to a university?

The University of California will accept IVC courses numbered 1 - 49 and most Athletics and Physical Education courses, regardless of the course number, up to a limit of 4 units of "PE activity" courses. However, students should not count the units earned for Selected Topics (48) or Special Studies (49) courses for the minimum 60 units needed for UC admission. Those courses will be evaluated for credit by your UC campus after transfer. Students should refer to the IVC UC-Transferable Course Agreement for a list of all IVC courses that have been accepted by the UC as transferable. The California State University accepts IVC courses numbered 1 - 99 and all PE units, regardless of the PE course number. Independent and out-of-state universities do not have specific agreements with IVC that relate to our course-numbering system. Generally, it is advisable to take UC-transferable coursework. However, if you are interested in transfer outside the California public university system, you should make early contact with the campus of their choice. An IVC transfer counselor can assist you in that communication. IVC counts courses numbered 1 - 299 toward an Associate degree, but courses numbered 100 - 299 are not accepted for transfer to a university.
